NOTICE BOARD

TOP OBEDIENCE DOGS OF 2022

Obedience trials were designed to test the dog's suitability as a good companion. Basic tests include heeling (on and off lead), Sit, Stand, Stay and coming when called. At more advanced levels, dogs are asked to jump, retrieve, respond to signals, and identify and retrieve articles carrying their handler's scent.

#1 - GMOTCH Tanbark's Cutting Edge RN

2022 marks the fifth year that Rose Apollonio has been part of Canada's #1 Obedience Dog duo. This year Rose's dog Blitz, an amazingly intelligent and devoted Golden Retriever, took top spot.

We caught up with all the Top 10 Obedience Dog teams of 2022 to learn more about these incredible dogs and their unforgettable year.

TOP SHOW DOGS 2022

In 2022, many of us celebrated a return to dog shows after the pandemic. We got to travel again, catch up with dearly missed friends, and celebrate beautiful dogs both mature and new puppies we raised during periods of lockdowns.

The Top Show Dogs system awards one point for every dog defeated from Best of Breed competition to Best in Show. Top Dogs are ranked according to the Top 5 in each breed, the Top 10 in each group, and the Top 10 all breeds.

#1 - GCHEX Rivermist Broxden Magnuttic JT AGNJ FDJ CGN

Canada's number one show dog of 2022 for All Breeds is Arthur, a handsome Brittany Spaniel who brought his owners into the wonderful world of dog shows!

We caught up with the owners of Canada's Top Ten Show Dogs to find more about these Conformation stars!

TOP RALLY DOGS OF 2022

Fast-moving, upbeat, and tons of fun, Rally is a sport that demonstrates the competency of both handler and dog in performing Obedience exercises without requiring exact precision for success. Watching a CKC Rally event will make you truly understand the meaning of the word teamwork.

Danielle Mathias noticed that her Australian Shepherd, Rigby had incredible focus from a young age. Lucky for Rigby, Danielle took those talents and watched her boy excel at several sports while showing the true diversity of his breed. Rigby is highly praise motivated, so Rally was a great fit for the bright Aussie and the team went all the way to #1!

The Canadian Kennel Club is pleased to introduce you to the Top Rally Dogs of 2022.

CKC LAUNCHES FIRST OFFICIAL RESPIRATORY FUNCTION GRADING SCHEME SCREENING CLINIC

The Canadian Kennel Club has partnered with the Orthopedic Foundation for Animals (OFA) to bring the Respiratory Function Grading Scheme (RFG Scheme) to Canada.

Watch this video from our first Canadian Respiratory Clinic to learn how this examination will support breeders in preserving the health and wellbeing of their purebred dogs, including brachycephalic (short-nosed) breeds.

NEW MISCELLANEOUS BREEDS – NEXT STEPS

We would like to inform our members that owners of the Appenzeller Sennenhund and Bergamasco Shepherd Dog can now receive a Miscellaneous Certificate Number (MCN).

CKC will require the following:

- Breeder's information including mailing address, email address, and telephone number (required for American breeders)
- Importation document with complete date of arrival in Canada, or a letter of import with the complete date of arrival
- Proof of ownership from foreign kennel club with address
- Export pedigree (including proof of ownership) or 3 generation pedigree from AKC
- Dog must be implanted with a CKC acceptable Microchip or tattoo

Applications can be submitted online via the Member Portal as an Application for the sole purpose of events or using the physical Foreign Born Dog Application.

The Appenzeller Sennenhund and Bergamasco Shepherd Dog are eligible to compete in CKC Events as of July 1, 2023.

Please note: AKC FSS documents are not admissible for MCN applications.

GOLDEN EXPECTATIONS

We live in an on-demand world. Whether it's food delivered to our doorstep, shopping online at any hour, scrolling through dating prospects on our phone, or getting lost in the world of TikTok videos, we have endless information at our fingertips.

TikTok is where comedy lives, recipes are distributed, and life hacks get shared. There are myriad TikTok videos on our favourite topic, dogs! Dog TikToks range from cute puppy videos to impressive tricks to people sharing whatever advice they like, regardless of how qualified they are. One need not provide any credentials to post a TikTok, so while I think that some tips serve dog owners well, others make me cringe.

Few videos stood out from the crowd until I came across a video from Method K9, a training centre in Idaho. In the video, a woman named Stephanie Vichinsky explained how untrue the old saying "It's all in how you raise them" is. While we all can agree that early training and socialization are crucial, genetics play a monumental role in domesticated dog personality and behaviour. It's also on her Instagram page @MethodK9, and I think that you should definitely check it out.

Watching the video got me thinking about something I often see in puppy buyers that I call the "Golden Expectation". When puppy buyers choose a breed based primarily on their looks, they often end up with a breed that surprises and sometimes disappoints them in temperament, personality, and energy level.

Many people grew up with a quintessential family dog, such as a Golden Retriever. When they impulse choose a new breed, they still have the expectations that their new furry best friend will suit their lifestyle just like their beloved Golden Retriever did. These new owners think the same love, care, and training will result in the same wonderful experience they shared with their childhood dog, except their new Rottweiler (or any other breed) isn't a Golden Retriever in a different costume.

NOTICE BOARD

I use Golden Retrievers as the example because Golden Retrievers are popular, generally easy to train, eager to learn, focused on pleasing their owners, and friendly towards strangers and other dogs. For the most part, you could replace Golden Retriever with Labrador Retriever or Standard Poodle, but I simply like the way Golden fits with Expectations.

Why the disappointment?

The great thing about purebred dogs is their diversity. We have dogs that guard, keep rats out of barns, hunt lions, detect bombs, herd livestock, you name the task; with over 400 purebred dog breeds worldwide, there's probably a purebred dog that does it. With all these different jobs come different bodies, coats, and minds.

Let's especially focus on the minds of different purebred dogs. My Standard Poodle and my Dandie Dinmont Terriers are all fantastic pets. However, my Poodle's mind is different than those of my Dandies. Poodles were developed as water retrievers in Germany who worked directly with hunters. Dandies were developed along the Scottish/English border to rid property of vermin, particularly foxes and badgers. Hunters developed Poodles to listen to them, follow their cues, collect the fowl and return it to them. Dandies were developed to think for themselves and follow their gut when it came to pulling a wild, live animal out of a den, as it would be hard for a Dandie to follow instructions coming from above the ground.

Could you imagine what a disaster it would be for a Dandie Dinmont Terrier to be following their nose and chasing every critter that moves in the woods, scaring away all the birds? Or a Poodle popping out of a badger's den, asking their owner for instructions as to what to do next while attempting to pull a very angry animal out of a hole?

As my breeds were bred to perform different types of hunting, they have different personalities. My Poodle has a very eager-to-please personality and amazing manners. Our morning routine is that I let the dogs into my backyard and then go upstairs, prepare their breakfast and let them back inside to eat. Once I open the door, the Dandies tear past me at full speed, eager to get upstairs and not so patiently wait for me to put their bowls down. My Poodle comes in, greets me at the door and then follows me upstairs. I can let my Poodle off leash anywhere, and she will follow all my instructions without fail. With the Dandies and their determined attitude, I could never be sure if they would come back to me if any sight or smell was more interesting than returning to me.

There is a wide range of dog breeds I like and have owned. Although I love my Poodle for so many reasons, I love my Dandies for just as many and have learned never to expect my Dandies to act like a Poodle or vice versa. To do so would be an insult to those who created the breeds and to those dedicated breeders who have kept the breeds consistent and true to their purpose for centuries.

Before bringing a puppy home, one must be incredibly honest with themselves. Not only with how active you are and how much grooming you are willing to commit to, but also to which personalities you can live with happily. How much do you value your personal space? If you don't want a Velcro dog, you don't want a breed like a Doberman Pinscher who wants to be next to you all day long (and that includes the restroom).

You might prefer a more independent dog that checks in with you periodically throughout the day but then goes off and relaxes alone like a Terrier or a sighthound. Do you want a dog that is protective of its home and family like a Chow Chow? Or would you rather a dog that is the life of the party, like a Beagle?

The best way to "try out a purebred" is to meet adults of that breed and only decide on a breed if you absolutely love the adult versions of that breed, as most puppies are fairly similar in the cuteness and personality departments. An all-breed conformation dog show is a perfect place to meet many different breeds and chat with those who know them very well.

Going back to the Golden Expectation, if you love your current breed but are curious to try out a new breed, I would suggest looking into a breed somewhat similar in personality to the one you love already. A friend of mine has owned Salukis for many years and recently acquired a Borzoi he is delighted with. Another friend owns both German Wire-haired Pointers and Spinone Italiani with great success. On the other hand, if you once owned a dog and found them tough to live with, pinpoint what exactly bothered you and start looking for a breed that doesn't tend to have those traits.

When choosing a breed, it is imperative to research why exactly the breed was created and then consider how those traits would fit into your lifestyle. I believe it's foolish to believe "mine will be different" as if hundreds of years of breeding will come undone because you want it to.

So, look at the breed you are interested in. Look at what they were intended to do and how that will fit into your day-to-day life. For example, an Australian Cattle Dog is incredibly smart but won't be happy without lots of exercise and daily brain work. A Japanese Chin is extremely devoted, but if you want a dog to tireless hike with you every weekend, the breed will let you down.

Before purchasing a new dog, do tons of research. The research doesn't mean only visiting one website where you are reading about one breeder's experience with the breed. Visit several and be wary of both the source and the tone. Are they telling you all about the breed? Or are they trying to quickly sell you a puppy?

Breed clubs and national kennel clubs, in my experience, have provided me with non-biased information. Talk to owners, talk to breeders, handlers and trainers who know the breed. Ask them to give you the good and the bad of the breed. Even the most invested breed enthusiast will tell you a part of living with their dogs that drives them a bit crazy. And, again, connect with adult versions of the breed and make sure that is what you want living in your home for the next 12-plus years. All the love, training and care won't change the centuries of work that was put into creating and maintaining purebred dogs, so make sure you choose wisely. Beware of "Golden Expectations".

MEET THE BIEWER TERRIER

Charming, whimsical, and intelligent

The Biewer Terrier's heritage is a much-discussed topic. In Germany, the birth of a blue, white, and gold puppy in 1984 marked the beginning of what is now known as the Biewer Terrier. In 2003, the breed was introduced into the United States. In 2007, during an in-depth genetic study of dogs imported into the U.S., scientists reported that all the dogs' blood samples had clustered together, as is characteristic of purebred results, and determined that the breed was derived from the influence of 3 or more other breeds. And so began the process that would establish the Biewer Terrier as a purebred dog, the first time in history that a dog has been confirmed as a breed of its own using the tools science has to offer.

The breed is incredibly devoted. Their purpose is to love and be loved. Vanessa Venditello of Alberta is one of the few Canadians that truly know this intelligent new breed's charm. I knew I had to interview her to learn more about this charming Toy breed.

How long have you had Biewer Terriers?

I started hearing about this beautiful breed from other fanciers around 2014. I joined the Biewer Terrier Club of America (AKC Parent Club) to gain more information about the breed and liaised with their founders about breed recognition. I acquired my first Biewer Terriers in 2018. I imported one dog, GiGi, from South Africa. An applicant for recognition of a new breed in Canada must own a dog from a country whose national registry has (a) a reciprocal agreement with CKC and (b) already fully recognized the breed. So, in essence, GiGi was fundamental to the Biewer Terrier becoming a CKC Listed Breed.

How long have you bred Biewer Terriers?

My mom was a Yorkshire Terrier breeder, and I have been breeding Yorkies since 2010. GiGi whelped a litter of Biewer

Terriers in May of 2020, producing four beautiful puppies. My pick pup from that litter whelped her first litter in December 2022.

What initially drew you to the Biewer Terrier?

I was intrigued by the Biewer Terrier's stunning colouring and charming personality, and as I further researched the breed, I became increasingly smitten by this unique, tri-coloured toy terrier. I founded the Biewer Terrier Club of Canada in 2018, and we have developed a little slogan, "Meet the Biewer ~ Everything You Want in a Toy Breed", because this really is an amazing and versatile little breed that checks so many boxes for dog owners.

Describe the Biewer Terrier's personality.

The Biewer Terrier is sometimes described as whimsical because they are very playful and fun-loving. Their purpose is "to love and be loved", and they are very devoted companions to their human family. They are equally happy to cozy up with you on the couch or play a vigorous game of fetch.

How much exercise do they require?

Like many toy-sized dogs, Biewer Terriers can fulfil their exercise requirements by daily living and playing within the household. That being said, they absolutely love the great outdoors and all that it offers. They can go for hikes with proper conditioning and compete in lots of sports.

Can they live in an apartment?

Biewer Terriers are perfect for apartment living because, as mentioned earlier, they can meet the daily requirements for exercise within the household. They also can be easily trained to use puppy pads for their potty needs. Although every dog is different, they are not barkers by nature.

Tell me about the coat and grooming requirements. Is shedding excessive?

If a Biewer Terrier is kept in a flowing drop coat, they must be brushed and combed every day or two to prevent tangles and mats. Because they have hair rather than fur, they shed very little, and a weekly bath is recommended.

Appropriate nail maintenance; shaving the paw pads, tips of the ears, and private area; and trimming their feet are the only other grooming tasks necessary, and all of these can be easily performed by owners. Some pet owners prefer to keep Biewer Terriers in a shorter "puppy cut" instead of frequent brushing and combing, but even then, they often keep the Biewer Terrier's signature waterfall ponytail.

Any health issues?

The Biewer Terrier is a relatively young breed and, on the whole, is a very hearty breed with very few known health issues at this time. Being a smaller breed, it does suffer from some dental issues, such as retained baby teeth and tartar build-up. A sensitive gastrointestinal system has been noted, making a quality diet imperative.

NOTICE BOARD

How long do they usually live?

The average life expectancy for a Biewer Terrier is 16 years.

Which dog sports are they involved in?

The Biewer Terrier is hearty and athletic. They exhibit confidence in Conformation, but also excel in many companion and performance sports. One of my female Biewer Terriers was the first dog to earn a CKC Championship title, and a male that I co-own was the first male to do so. I have also played in Agility with several of my Biewer Terriers, which they really excel in and enjoy. A friend of mine trials extensively with her Biewer Terrier in Rally Obedience, and that dog has achieved her CKC Rally Master (RM) title. That same dog was the first Biewer Terrier in the world to earn a Trick Dog Champion (TDCH) title, so they really are smart and versatile little dogs.

Are Biewer Terriers easy to keep with other dogs?

Because of their lovely personality and temperament, Biewer Terriers quickly make friends with both people and animals. They enjoy playing with dogs of all sizes, but because of their diminutive size, supervision around large dogs is very important to avoid injury.

How are they with children?

Biewer Terriers are wonderful with children and love to play with them. They are also loving companions to children and make great therapy dogs. That being said, it is important to supervise very young children and/or children who are not experienced with dogs, as these dogs are very tiny and can be injured unintentionally.

Who makes an ideal Biewer Terrier owner?

In my opinion, an ideal owner is someone who wants a fun and loving companion but also understands how to protect the safety of toy dogs and the grooming needs of a drop-coated dog. Although the breed is esthetically beautiful, an ideal owner capitalizes on their intelligence and athleticism by taking them to classes and events.

An ideal owner understands that this is a very social dog that loves to be around people and does not like to be alone for extremely long periods. And an ideal owner knows that they deserve a dog of sound conformation, health, and temperament. But they really need to do their homework and know the breed standard when searching for their new companion, as, unfortunately, there are a lot of unethical breeders out there breeding subpar dogs with horrible structure, in undesirable "exotic" colours, and of "teacup" size, etc.

Anything you would like everyone to know about Biewer Terriers?

Something I haven't mentioned yet is that people who enjoy travel find the Biewer Terrier to be a very portable and wonderful travel companion.

People also should be aware that once you have had a Biewer Terrier you can never live without one or two...or more!

The Biewer Terrier might be the breed for you if you:

- Like a playful and loving companion.
- Like a non-shedding dog.
- Cannot have a large dog due to limited space.
- Understand how to keep toy-sized dogs safe.
- Enjoy conformation, companion, and performance events.

The Biewer Terrier might not be the breed for you if you:

- Don't want to spend the time on coat maintenance.
- Have inexperienced children and/or large dogs who could potentially injure a toy-sized dog.
- Like to frequent dog parks with uncontrolled large dogs.
- Don't want to speak to strangers. (People WILL stop and ask about this unique dog.)
- Don't want to constantly explain how the breed is pronounced. (It is "beaver" like the small animal.)

Thank you so much to Vanessa Venditello of VeeVee Biewer Terriers. If you are interested in a Biewer Terrier, Vanessa can be contacted by emailing veeveebiewers@gmail.com

CANADIAN KENNEL CLUB MISSION STATEMENT

Who We Are

The Canadian Kennel Club (CKC) is the primary registry body for purebred dogs in Canada and currently recognizes 187 breeds. As a non-profit organization, the CKC is dedicated to encouraging, guiding, and advancing the interests of purebred dogs and their responsible owners and breeders in Canada and promoting the knowledge and understanding of the benefits which dogs can bring to Canadian society.

The CKC is incorporated under Animal Pedigree Act, a federal statute under the auspices of the Ministry of Agriculture. The organization includes approximately 20,000 individual members and over 700 breed clubs across Canada. The Club registers purebred dogs, regulates dog shows and performance events, and speaks out on major issues concerning dog ownership and the health & welfare of dogs across Canada.

Mission

As the prime registry of purebred dogs in Canada, our purpose is to serve our members and the public with education, support, guidance and sanctioning of events for all their canine endeavours. Our goal is the preservation of purebred dogs and the health, well-being and enjoyment of all dogs.

Vision

The CKC with its members, will be the definitive authority in Canada for purebred dogs, and an advocate for all dogs, setting the standard for the preservation of breeds and continuous improvement of health, wellbeing and enjoyment of purebred dogs.

Values

Passion: We are dedicated to purebred dogs with the belief in the value of dogs as an integral part of our lives, our society and the contributions dogs brings to our humanity.

Preservation: We are committed to the preservation of breed characteristics while producing healthy well-socialized dogs, with a commitment to continuous improvement and well-being of purebred dogs.

Knowledge: We educate and expand public awareness of the contribution purebred dogs bring to society. This includes the vast array of activities and opportunities for purebred dog enthusiasts... as well as a commitment to the principles of responsible breeding practices and responsible dog ownership.

Commitment: We protect and enhance the interests of our members, breeders, associated clubs and the public, supporting them with openness, honesty and compassion.

Integrity: We uphold the integrity of our registry, the high standards of governance and management of the Canadian Kennel Club.
